Frank Riggs is a senior member of the nationally-recognized Troutman Sanders' Construction Practice and resident in the firm's Atlanta office. For 35 years, Frank's law practice has focused exclusively on construction law matters, including the counseling of private and public owners, general contractors, construction managers, equipment suppliers, trade contractors, material suppliers, manufacturers, and real estate developers in dispute avoidance, as well as the representation of construction industry participants in complex construction disputes. Frank has extensive experience in the energy and utility construction realm, where he routinely represents utility companies and energy project developers in complex dispute matters, contract negotiation and best practices to avoid or mitigate project disputes. In addition, Frank's industry experience runs the full gamut of vertical and horizontal construction projects and all forms of project delivery.

Frank is a Fellow in the prestigious American College of Construction Lawyers and was named the 2012 and 2015 Atlanta Construction Law Lawyer of the Year by Best Lawyers. Frank is a founding Fellow in the Construction Lawyers Society of America, as well as a Fellow of the Litigation Counsel of America, a trial lawyer honorary society whose membership is limited to less than one-half of one percent of American lawyers. He is annually recognized as a leader in the construction law field by Atlanta Magazine's Super Lawyer edition, by Best Lawyers in America, by the International Who's Who of Construction Lawyers, and by Chambers and Partners, where he has been identified in the top tier of Georgia's leading lawyers in construction law.

An active participant in all types of ADR proceedings, as an advocate, arbitrator and mediator, he has practiced before the U.S. Court of Federal Claims in Washington, various Federal Boards of Contract Appeals, and in state and federal courts across the country.

Frank's construction law practice is national and international. He has advised clients, and successfully resolved client disputes, involving a myriad of construction and procurement issues, including project delay and inefficiency claims; termination disputes; bid protests; warranty claims; defective work; defective equipment
